The Gifted In Fremont

An Advocacy Group For Parents Of Gifted Students

An Affiliate Member of the California Association For the Gifted

Our mission is to promote the interests of gifted and talented students in the Fremont Unified School District by encouraging the fullest development of their potential at home and at school and providing a source of information and encouragement to parents and educators of gifted and talented children in Fremont, California public Sometimes ...

being GATE identified doesn't mean that you are an academic powerhouse,

Or, that you operate at your highest potential.

What about the GATE student who avoids new challenges because he/she is afraid that he/she can't live up to "expectations"?

...or the late bloomer who stopped taking educational risks because it became too "hard"?

However, ...

there is ample evidence to show that mindset profoundly affects achievement, thus,

MINDSET MATTERS!

"Emotional Resiliency-

How Attitude and Adaptability Affect Achievement"

Ms. Abrams will address how learning is a lifelong process, and demonstrate how parents can nurture independent learning thus fostering achievement!

When: Monday, November 26, 2007, 7-8:30 PM

Where: FUSD Board Room • 4210 Technology Drive • Fremont, CA 94539

Ms. Abrams is a national and international educational consultant for private and public schools, colleges, and organizations. An English teacher for nine years, Jennifer now trains, coaches teachers and administrators on successful teaching practices, new teacher support, supervision, evaluation and collaboration skills. She presents at annual conferences and at the New Teacher Center At UC Santa Cruz Annual Symposium as well as working with graduate students at Stanford University's Graduate School of Education and administrative candidates at Santa Clara University. She considers herself a "voice coach" helping teachers, administrators, and parents how to best use their voice in any situation. Jennifer holds a master degree in Education from Stanford University and Bachelors degree in English from Tufts University. She lives in Palo Alto, CA.
